

Interested in participating in automation research? We are looking for participants in a study conducted by Dr. Tapia on human-automation collaboration. The purpose of this study is to understand how humans interact with automation in situations of motion guidance via a mobile game.

The game enables you to guide a bee through obstacles toward a goal working in collaboration with automation assistance. If you participate in this study, you will be asked to play test the game and fill out surveys.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR GAME PLAY RESEARCH

Number: 01517
Version: 02/16/2017
Approved: 03/15/2017
Expires: EXEMPT

Institutional Review Board
(505) 277-2644 | irb.unm.edu

Participation will take approximately an hour. You will be compensated with a $10 gift card upon completion. Participation is voluntary and you can cancel at any time.

Participants at least age 18 are eligible. If you are interested in participating in this study, fill out the survey at:

Survey at: <http://bit.ly/2mNf1Vq>

Questions about this study can be directed to the Principal Investigator at:
tapia@cs.unm.edu